3RD ARMY BELIEVED EXTENDING ITS SEINE RIVER BRIDGEHEADS ABOVE AND BELOW PARIS; ALLIES NEAR LISIEUX

German Reports Continue to Indicate Nazis Preparing to Abandon Paris Without a Fight — Paris Underground Establishes Contact With Advance Allied Patrols Approaching City.

By International News Service

The Third U. S. Army was believed to be extending its Seine river bridgeheads above and below Paris today.

The morning communiqué from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters made no mention of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.'s drive to trap the battered German 15th Army northwest of the French capital and to encircle the city.

But front dispatches and German reports again indicated that the Nazis were preparing to abandon Paris without a fight. And the Brazzaville radio reported that members of the Paris underground have established contact with advance Allied patrols approaching the city.

The official Allied communiqué said one Allied column had fought its way to within a mile of Lisieux, important communications center 75 miles northwest of Paris, in what appeared to be a British-Canadian drive against Nazi robot bomb launching sites on the French coast.

Mopping-up operations continued in the Argentan-Falaise pocket. Headquarters said there was "nothing to report" from the remainder of the front in Northern France.

BLOOD FLOWN OVERSEAS TO SUPPLEMENT PLASMA

Red Cross Now Providing Whole Blood for Shipment By Air to Europe

ARMY AND NAVY PLEA

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22—On the 80th birthday of the founding of the Red Cross, and in response to an urgent request from the Army and Navy, the American Red Cross now is providing whole blood for shipment by air to Europe. It was announced today by Basil O'Connor, Red Cross national chairman.

The first shipment was made yesterday (Monday), one week after receipt of a letter from Major General Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the Army, and Vice-Admiral Ross T. McIntire, surgeon general of the Navy, requesting that 1,000 pints of whole blood be procured in addition to the 100,000 pints a week already required for plasma.

The surgeons general pointed out that recent developments in the preservation and transportation of whole blood now make it possible to ship blood to Europe, while in the past it could be obtained only from base troops and civilian donors in the hospital areas.

Emphasizing that whole blood would be used in base hospitals to supplement plasma administered in the front lines, the surgeons general said that plasma is "the foremost lifesaver of the war" and pointed out that its prompt administration has been largely responsible for saving the lives of 97 out of every 100 wounded Americans.

Mr. O'Connor said that the surgeons general emphasized that their request for whole blood, while urgent, is fully matched in importance by the continuing need for plasma. As our armed forces advance, more donors are needed. Regardless of whether it is flown overseas as whole blood for hospitals or processed into plasma for use in the front lines, a pint of blood to save the life of a wounded soldier or sailor is the most important contribution any American at home can make.

Commenting on Mr. O'Connor's announcement, Louis H. Bieler, Chairman, Blood Donor Service, S. E. Pennsylvania Chapter, said: "This new request from the Army and Navy emphasizes more than ever the need for maintaining our quotas here."

"The emphasis which the surgeons general have placed upon the urgent necessity of maintaining plasma supplies makes it imperative that we join with the other 34 Centers and mobile units in guaranteeing that the new national quota of 105,000 pints of blood a week is met."

The text of the Army-Navy letter to Mr. O'Connor follows: "During the last three and a half years, millions of Americans have generously given their blood for the armed forces. This blood, donated through the American Red Cross and processed into life-saving plasma, has been sent to Europe."

You May Use Your Lawn and Garden Sprinklers Sparingly

A schedule for sprinkling lawns and victory gardens was announced today by Borough Engineer, John S. Roberts, Jr. The schedule is given so as to aid the borough in maintaining a sufficient water reserve for fire purposes.

"At present we have an ample reserve for fire protection," said Mr. Roberts, "but the condition might change at any minute." So as a means of affording all an ample supply Mr. Roberts said: "Residents in Bristol Township may operate their lawn and garden sprinklers from 7 a. m. until nine a. m. Residents in Bristol Borough may operate their lawn and garden sprinklers from seven p. m. until nine p. m. Mr. Roberts used the word "sparingly" in granting permission to use the lawn and garden sprinklers.

The water reserve appears to be holding up, but the continued drought is making it difficult to supply all the water that is needed, and at the same time keep an ample supply on hand for fire protection. This plan may have to be cancelled at any time.

TAXATION AND FINANCE

PART I

WHO PAYS TAXES

(Doylestown Intelligence, August 21st)

In all the field of government there is no one subject in which the need for a clear understanding, both by voters and by their elected officials, is more imperatively urgent than that of taxation.

A nation's tax program is the key to its success or failure. Taxation without representation caused the American Revolution. Representation without taxation nearly spelled the collapse of the Union of States under the Articles of Federation. A workable plan of taxation laid out in the Constitution of the United States and amplified by the genius of Alexander Hamilton, was the means by which the American nation rose to its present world-dominance.

Many nations and forms of government have died during recorded history. Some, like Carthage, were wiped out as a result of war. Most of the others fell because of unsound tax policies.

Those which lived long, such as the Egyptian dynasties and feudalism, were those in which taxation fitted into needs of the successive generations. But in such governments, when advancing civilization posed new needs, the inadequacies of the taxation to meet the changed requirements wrote an end to the chapter.

The tax policies of Louis IV, who mortgaged all France to build Versailles, have been a shadow over that nation ever since. Whole books have been written to show how the national debt led to the French Revolution. Financial errors in the distant past are still weighing heavily not only on France but on many other nations.

When "Dear Alben" Barkley revolted against President Roosevelt a few months ago, it was on the subject of taxes.

This skirmish between two leading New Dealers was not a brush in the front line trenches—not an engagement on the frontiers of Congressional powers.

The right of determining taxes is the most fundamental of legislative rights. Without holding the whip-hand on the amount and methods of national financing, Congress cannot by any process function as legislative representatives of the American people.

This is not so much a concept of democratic, republican or representative forms of government as it is a first principle of all free government.

The earliest restrictions placed upon the autocratic power of kings and emperors were upon their right to levy unlimited taxes. The controversy far antedates the Bible; both Old and New Testament are full of references to it. Extremely few of the important revolutions by which the cause of government by the people has been advanced failed to have taxation as a root.

The reason why the issue has been debated and fought over for so many thousand years is well expressed in the old saying:

PLANTINGS AT GEORGE SCHOOL ARE VARIED

Much Has Been Accomplished in Woods and Meadows at Newtown

NATURAL LOCATIONS

NEWTOWN, Aug. 22—The plantings on the campus at George School were told of to members of Linghock's Garden Club, which were addressed by Miss Elizabeth A. Woodman recently.

The speaker stated that it is interesting to see what has been accomplished in the 50 years since the founding of the school, and added too much has been planted to be able to cover the grounds in one day and do justice to the interesting things there. Natural locations and exposures, she said, are found for almost any planting desired from the wild flowers to the most highly cultivated ones. Down on the Neshaminy meadows may always be found flowers from the Spring beauties and bluebells to the orange sneeze-weed in the Fall. The native dogwood in the woods has been supplemented by the pink dogwood, and is a fine display in its season.

Shrubbery includes various viburnums, rhododendron, abelias, elagnus, Japanese holly, several types of barberry, forsythia, silver-bell, pearl bush, lilacs and azaleas. The wooded section of the campus is being planted with various trees. Continued on Page Four

FIRE DESTROYS TWO PARKLAND BUNGALOWS

Dwellings and All Contents Consumed in Short Period of Time

MAN BURNED A LITTLE

PARKLAND, Aug. 22—Two families were made homeless yesterday afternoon when fire due to the explosion of an oil stove razed two frame residences on Stenme Road here, near Hulmeville Road. For a time the grille of Clarence Stenme was endangered.

The flames, according to those residing in the vicinity, originated in the two-story house occupied by the family of Frank Morones. One of the Morones daughters said that her mother was canning peaches and preparing lunch when the oil stove exploded.

Mrs. Morones fainted and a physician had to be consulted. The other structure which was destroyed with its contents was owned and occupied by William Strummel. This bungalow caught fire from the Morones place.

Mr. Strummel was slightly burned on the arm.

A general alarm was sounded and fire companies from Langhorne, South Langhorne, Hulmeville, Bristol, and Parkland responded. Water was secured from hydrants along the Lincoln Highway a short distance away, and also from a small stream nearby.

The Stenme place was scorched to an extent by the intense blaze, but firemen were able to prevent it from igniting.

The Morones and Strummel families lost all the clothing and furniture contained in the two residences.

The Strummels returned to their Philadelphia home last evening; and the Morones and their several children were given shelter at the home of a Mr. Palmer about one square away. Neighbors aided Continued on Page Four

NONINI HELD FOR GRAND JURY IN FATAL CRASH CASE

Driver of Car Which Killed Two and Injured Two Must Face Trial

DOES NOT TESTIFY

Declines To Tell Coroner's Jury His Version of The Crash

A coroner's jury last night recommended that Bruno R. Nonini, Bristol, be held for the grand jury on the charge of involuntary manslaughter. Nonini was the driver of the car which early on the morning of May 28th, struck and killed a man and woman and injured another man and a woman on Route 713 (Burlington-Bristol bridge approach).

After a number of witnesses had been heard by Coroner J. Alfred Rigby and a jury consisting of Ralph Ratcliffe, foreman; George Bruden, Irvin Scheffey, Edward Dougherty, James H. Brooks, Bristol; Elmer VanSant, Corawells Heights, Coroner Rigby asked Nonini if he desired to testify.

"He doesn't care to testify," replied Nonini's attorney, J. Leslie Kilcoyne, Esq.

Nonini will be held under bail today by Justice of Peace Cooper, of Langhorne, for the next term of criminal court. Nonini has been out on bail awaiting the action of the coroner's jury.

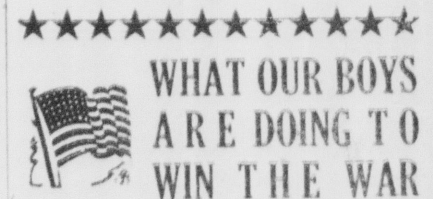

The Nonini car fatally injured Claire Di Vincenzo, 19, 210 Cedar street, and Alphonso Walukas, 23, 534 Bath street, home address 719 Wood Court, South Fork, Pa. The two injured in the same accident were Harriet Jones, 20, Knights Road, Torresdale, who suffered abrasions of the left leg and Edward Markuse, 19, 430 Radcliffe street, who sustained abrasions of the head, arm and legs.

The accident occurred at about 1:20 a. m., on May 28th and Nonini was driving a car without an operator's license, his having been suspended according to Officer Biowka, Penna. State Police, on July 8, 1941, for an accident in Philadelphia. The license had never been restored.

Officer Biowka was the first witness and he read a statement given him by Nonini after the accident in which the defendant said that the lights of an approaching car had blinded him and that he did not see the two couples walking in back of each other, until he was too close upon them to avoid striking them. The statement told how Nonini and his wife had met Private Jesse Bartle, Garden street, and Katherine Crudo, Cedar and Penn street, at the Moose Home in Bristol. They drove to the Moose Home in Burlington and after a while Nonini drove his wife back to Bristol and then returned to Burlington for Bartle and Miss Crudo. It was while the three were enroute to Bristol from Burlington that the four pedestrians were struck by the Nonini car.

Private Bartle is now in France but following the accident had told Officer Biowka, he said that he was riding in the front seat on the right side. He said that he felt the brakes being applied and then heard a thud as the car struck the pedestrians. Bartle and Nonini got out of the car and Nonini aided in placing the dead and injured in the cars of others to be taken to hospitals, while Bartle took Miss Crudo to her home.

In reply to a question by the Coroner Officer Biowka said that he did not charge Nonini with being intoxicated, but that he detected the odor of liquor on his breath. Continued on Page Two

FLEETWINGS NINE BATTLES RIVALS TO A 5 TO 5 DEADLOCK

Rising Sun A. C., of Phila., Deadlocks Score After Wingers Had Lead

HENRY STARS AT BAT

Phila. Player Made 22 Hits And Was Passed Once

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—Fleetwings and the Rising Sun A. C. battled to a 5-5 deadlock last evening on the latter's field. The Rising Sun team deadlocked the score after the Wingers had taken a 5-4 lead in the fourth inning.

The batting of Henry, of the home team, stood out. By getting three hits in his first three trips to the plate, Henry extended his hitting streak to 22 straight hits. In the sixth, Henry was purposely passed. It was this same Henry who sent the tying run across the plate with a single.

"Mike" DeRisi tossed them in for Fleetwings and with the exception of the second held the Rising Sun boys in check. He allowed nine hits with eight of them going to Henry, Covello and Kuhn.

Fleetwings had seven hits off Kuhn and Hewitt. The latter relieved Kuhn in the third. But several of the Arrows' players were robbed of hits by the sensational fielding of Covello, third-sacker for the Rising Sun team. Calderone hit three singles and was given a pass to lead the Fleetwings batters.

The Arrows had their best frame in the third when they tied the score after trailing 4-2. Holcomb was given a walk. Dougherty sacrificed him to second. Calderone was passed. Walker whiffed but Ludwig hit with a pitched ball to load the bags. D'Ascendis beat out an infield hit to score Holcomb and when Bachman drew a pass, Calderone scored.

After Dougherty had been put on base by being hit with a pitched ball in the fourth, Calderone and Walker hit safely to score the runners and give Fleetwings the edge but the Philadelphia boys tied it up in their half of the inning when Kuhn singled and went to third on Ludwig's error. Henry scored the runner with a base hit.

ing plasma, is being used on all our fighting fronts. Flown, shipped, carried by natives, or dropped by parachute, blood plasma carries a AA-1 priority right up to the front lines. It is the foremost lifesaver of the war. Its use is largely responsible for the fact that 97 out of every 100 of our wounded men are being saved.

"The principal advantage of plasma over whole blood transfusions, upon which we had to rely during the first World War, is that plasma requires neither typing nor refrigeration and can be prepared in advance and used under the most difficult combat conditions. In many instances, as in Saipan, Guam, Italy and France, medical department men crawl forward carefully shielding precious bottles of plasma and give emergency transfusions to wounded men in the very front lines. Plasma is also administered when the man is moved back to a casualty clearing station, and again in hospitals in the rear. In thousands of cases, the prompt administration of plasma means the difference between life and death.

"In many instances, especially those in which the patient is suffering from traumatic shock unaccompanied by excessive bleeding, plasma transfusions are the only transfusions required. In others, red blood cells, which are removed in the processing of plasma, are needed also. These are primarily cases in which the patient has lost a large quantity of blood. In such cases, whole blood transfusions are given to supplement the use of plasma. Since whole blood is highly perishable compared with plasma (which keeps indefinitely) and requires rather cumbersome refrigeration, whole blood transfusions for the most part are necessarily limited to hospitals in rear areas.

"In the past, the whole blood used by the armed forces has been procured from able-bodied men aboard ship or from base troops in rear areas overseas who are near enough to the hospitals to provide blood when needed. The only exceptions to this practice (which dates back to the first World War and is followed by many nations) are certain instances where whole blood has been procured from civilians in combat zones, as in England.

"Although this practice will be continued as needed, extensive experiments with the preservation and transportation of whole blood have now established the feasibility of shipping whole blood from this country to the European theater—and possibly, in the near future, to other theaters—by air. It is also possible that red blood cells, which formerly were discarded in the processing of plasma, may be resuspended in saline solution, flown to the combat zones, and used for the same purpose. Obviously, the availability of such supplies will greatly facilitate the treatment of the wounded.

"Plans for the inauguration of such a whole blood program now have been completed. In order to begin shipments without delay, it is requested that the American Red Cross through its Blood Donor Service arrange immediately to supply Type "O" whole blood for daily shipment by air to Europe.

"How much whole blood will be required will depend upon the course of the war. At present, 1,000 pints a day are requested. This, of course, is in addition to the 100,000 pints a week required for blood plasma.

"To facilitate air transport and to simplify technical operations, it is requested that for the time being the procurement of typed whole blood be limited to the Red Cross Blood Donor Centers in Washington and New York. In event additional amounts are required or the program is expanded to include other theaters, additional request will be made. Although it is improbable that it will be feasible or necessary to extend the typed blood project beyond a few Centers, this new request obviously represents a substantial increase in the total amount of blood required each week.

"It should be emphasized that this request, while urgent, is fully matched in importance by the continuing need for plasma. As our armed forces advance, more donors are needed. Regardless of whether it is flown overseas as whole blood for hospitals or processed into plasma for use in the front lines, a pint of blood to save the life of a wounded soldier or sailor is the most important contribution any American at home can make. We are confident that the Red Cross and the American people will accept this new responsibility and will continue to see to it that the needs of the armed forces for blood are met."

"The power to tax is the power to destroy."

Taxation may destroy the individual, or the nation, or both. Moreover, its effects are not confined to one generation but may extend far into the future.

Under any contemporary plan of financial arrangement, taxes are paid by everyone. None escapes. At points this even verges on absurdity. A government pays an employee, a war veteran, or a man on relief, a certain sum out of public taxes—and then promptly recaptures a considerable share of the payment in direct or indirect taxes.

Few stop to think that, in theory at least, the same result could be obtained with much less waste motion and greatly lessened total expense simply by writing a smaller check in the first place.

This of course is not necessarily feasible, for many reasons; the principal one being that so large a portion of our taxes are the "invisible" kind. A few years ago it was a popular piece of mental gymnastics to take any familiar article of commerce—a pack of cigarettes, or an automobile—and show how huge a proportion of its consumer cost was nothing but taxes.

There are articles in the so-called luxury class—but so widely consumed that the term is misleading—in which two-thirds or three-fourths of the final price represents tax levies.

It is virtually impossible to think of a purchase of even so small amount as a dime in which there is not a more or less obvious tax.

Since everyone, from millionaire to tramp buying a cup of coffee, pays taxes, it is well worth while inquiring into the principle, methods and objectives of American taxation.

pus is principally of oaks of various kinds and many nut trees, while through the grounds have been planted magnolias, crab apples, flowering cherries, of which there is a fine grouping, redbuds, English hawthorne and the unusual weeping Norway spruce.

Various flower borders are in well chosen locations. There include a rose garden with an arbor for the climbers and beds for hybrid teas, hybrid perpetuals, floribundas, hugonis and sweet briar.

A very large bed of winter aconite blooms in February, and makes a sheet of gold in the winter sun.

Planting is still being done, and the campus will be even more interesting in another 50 years, said Miss Woodman.

3RD ARMY BELIEVED EXTENDING ITS SEINE RIVER BRIDGEHEADS ABOVE AND BELOW PARIS; ALLIES NEAR LISIEUX

German Reports Continue to Indicate Nazis Preparing to Abandon Paris Without a Fight — Paris Underground Establishes Contact With Advance Allied Patrols Approaching City.

By International News Service

The Third U. S. Army was believed to be extending its Seine river bridgeheads above and below
Paris today.

The morning communiqué from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters made no mention of Lieut.
Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.'s drive to trap the battered German 15th Army northwest of the French capital and to encircle the city.

But front dispatches and German reports again indicated that the Nazis were preparing to abandon Paris without a fight. And the Brazzaville radio reported that members of the Paris underground have established contact with advance Allied patrols approaching the city.

The official Allied communiqué said one Allied column had fought its way to within a mile of Lisieux, important communications center 75 miles northwest of Paris, in what appeared to be a British-Canadian drive against Nazi robot bomb launching sites on the French coast.

Mopping-up operations continued
in the Argentan-Falaise pocket.
Headquarters said there was "nothing to report" from the remainder of the front in Northern France.

Red Cross Now Providing Whole Blood for Shipment By Air to Europe

ARMY AND NAVY PLEA

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22—
On the 80th birthday of the founding of the Red Cross, and in response to an urgent request from the Army and Navy, the American Red Cross now is providing whole blood for shipment by air to Europe to supplement the use of plasma. It was announced today by Basil O'Connor, Red Cross national chairman.

The first shipment was made yesterday (Monday), one week after receipt of a letter from Major General Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the Army, and Vice-Admiral Ross T. McIntire, surgeon general of the Navy, requesting that 1,000 pints of whole blood a day be procured in addition to the 100,000 pints a week already required for plasma.

The surgeons general pointed out that recent developments in the preservation and transportation of whole blood now make it possible to ship blood to Europe, while in the past it could be obtained only from base troops and civilian donors in the hospital areas.

Emphasizing that whole blood would be used in base hospitals to supplement plasma administered in the front lines, the surgeons general said that plasma is "the foremost lifesaver of the war" and pointed out that its prompt administration has been largely responsible for saving the lives of 97 out of every 100 wounded Americans.

Mr. O'Connor said that the surgeons general emphasized that their request for whole blood, while urgent, is fully matched in importance by the continuing need for plasma. As our armed forces advance, more donors are needed.
Regardless of whether it is flown overseas as whole blood for hospitals or processed into plasma for use in the front lines, a pint of blood to save the life of a wounded soldier or sailor is the most important contribution any American at home can make.

Commenting on Mr. O'Connor's
announcement, Louis H. Bieler, Chairman, Blood Donor Service,
S. E. Pennsylvania Chapter, said:
"This new request from the Army and Navy emphasizes more than ever the need for maintaining our quotas here."

"The emphasis which the surgeons general have placed upon the urgent necessity of maintaining plasma supplies makes it imperative that we join with the other 34 Centers and mobile units in guaranteeing that the new, national quota of 105,000 pints of blood
a week is met."

The text of the Army-Navy letter to Mr. O'Connor follows:
"During the last three and a half years, millions of Americans have generously given their blood for the armed forces. This blood, donated through the American Red Cross and processed into life-saving plasma, has been the key to our

You May Use Your Lawn and Garden Sprinklers Sparingly

A schedule for sprinkling lawns and victory gardens was announced today by Borough Engineer, John S. Roberts, Jr. The schedule is given so as to aid the borough in maintaining a sufficient water reserve for fire purposes.
"At present we have an ample reserve for fire protection," said
Mr. Roberts, "but the condition might change at any minute."
So as a means of affording all an ample supply Mr. Roberts said:
"Residents in Bristol Township may operate their lawn and garden sprinklers from 7 a. m. until nine a. m.
Residents in Bristol Borough may operate their lawn and garden sprinklers from seven p. m. until nine p. m.
Mr. Roberts used the word "sparingly" in granting permission to use the lawn and garden sprinklers.

The water reserve appears to be holding up, but the continued drought is making it difficult to supply all the water that is needed, and at the same time keep an ample supply on hand for fire protection.

This plan may have to be cancelled at any time.

(Doylestown Intelligencer, August 21st)

In all the field of government there is no one subject in which the need for a clear understanding, both by voters and by their elected officials, is more imperatively urgent than that of taxation.

A nation's tax program is the key to its success or failure. Taxation without representation caused the American Revolution. Representation without taxation nearly spelled the collapse of the Union of States under the Articles of Federation. A workable plan of taxation laid out in the Constitution of the United States and amplified by the genius of Alexander Hamilton, was the means by which the American nation rose to its present world-dominance.

Many nations and forms of government have died during recorded history. Some, like Carthage, were wiped out as a result of war. Most of the others fell because of unsound tax policies.

Those which lived long, such as the Egyptian dynasties and feudalism, were those in which taxation fitted into needs of the successive generations. But in such governments, when advancing civilization posed new needs, the inadequacies of the taxation to meet the changed requirements wrote an end to the chapter.

The tax policies of Louis IV, who mortgaged all France to build Versailles, have been a shadow over that nation ever since. Whole books have been written to show how the national debt led to the French Revolution.
Financial errors in the distant past are still weighing heavily not only on France but on many other nations.

When "Dear Alben" Barkley revolted against President Roosevelt a few months ago, it was on the subject of taxes.

This skirmish between two leading New Dealers was not a brush in the front line trenches—not an engagement on the frontiers of Congressional powers.

The right of determining taxes is the most fundamental of legislative rights. Without holding the whip-hand on the amount and methods of national financing, Congress cannot by any process function as legislative representatives of the American people.

This is not so much a concept of democratic, republican or representative forms of government as it is a first principle of all free government.

The earliest restrictions placed upon the autocratic power of kings and emperors were upon their right to levy unlimited taxes. The controversy far antedates the Bible;
both Old and New Testament are full of references to it.
Extremely few of the important revolutions by which the cause of government by the people has been advanced failed to have taxation as a root.

The reason why the issue has been debated and fought over for so many thousand years is well expressed in the old saying:

PLANTINGS AT GEORGE SCHOOL ARE VARIED

Much Has Been Accomplished in Woods and Meadows at Newtown

NATURAL LOCATIONS

NEWTOWN, Aug. 22—The plantings on the campus at George School were told of to members of Linghocken Garden Club, when they were addressed by Miss Elizabeth A. Woodman recently.

The speaker stated that it is interesting to see what has been accomplished in the 50 years since the founding of the school, and added too much has been planted to be able to cover the grounds in one day and do justice to the interesting things there. Natural locations and exposures, she said, are found for almost any planting desired from the wild flowers to the most highly cultivated ones. Down the Neshaminy meadows may always be found flowers from the Spring beauties and bluebells to the orange sneeze-weed in the Fall.
The native dogwood in the woods
has been supplemented by the pink dogwood, and is a fine display in its season.

Shrubbery includes various viburnums, rhododendrons, abelias, el-yagnus, Japanese holly, several types of barberry, forsythia, silver-bell, pearl bush, lilacs and azaleas.
The wooded section of the campus is a beautiful sight.

Tech. Sgt. Elmer Olson Is Killed Over Germany

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 22—That Tech. Sgt. Elmer R. Olson has been killed in action, is the message received by his wife and parents, Mr.
and Mrs. Elmer Olson, of E. Philadelphia avenue.

Death occurred over Germany on the 7th of July, according to his wife, Lucille Retter Olson, of W.
Franklin street.

Sgt. Olson was a radioman on a B-24 Liberator, and was first reported missing in action on the above date, in a telegram received here the middle of July.

A graduate of Morrisville high school, where he was an outstanding athlete, the 29-year-old youth entered the army soon after and received his basic training in Miami.
He then attended the air corps
radio schools in Chicago, Scott Field, Ill., and Las Vegas, Nev. He was married while stationed at March Field, Cal., in March of this year, and left for overseas a few months later.

FIRE DESTROYS TWO PARKLAND BUNGALOWS

Dwellings and All Contents
Consumed in Short Period of Time

MAN BURNED A LITTLE

PARKLAND, Aug. 22—Two families were made homeless yesterday afternoon when fire due to the explosion of an oil stove razed two frame residences on Stemme Road here, near Hulmeville Road. For a time the grille of Clarence Stemme was endangered.

The flames, according to those residing in the vicinity, originated in the two-story house occupied by the family of Frank Moronece. One of the Moronece daughters said that her mother was canning peaches and preparing lunch when the oil stove exploded.

Mrs. Moronece fainted, and a physician had to be consulted.
The other structure which was destroyed with its contents was owned and occupied by William Strummel. This bungalow caught fire from the Moronece place.

Mr. Strummel was slightly burned on the arm.

A general alarm was sounded
and fire companies from Langhorne, South Langhorne, Hulme-ville, Bristol, and Parkland responded. Water was secured from hydrants along the Lincoln Highway a short distance away, and also from a small stream nearby.

The Stemme place was scorched to an extent by the intense blaze, but firemen were able to prevent it from igniting.

The Moronece and Strummel families lost all the clothing and furniture contained in the two residences.

The Strummels returned to their Philadelphia home last evening;
and the Moroneces and their several children were given shelter at the home of a Mr. Palmer about one square away. Neighbors aided

NONINI HELD FOR GRAND JURY IN FATAL CRASH CASE

Driver of Car Which Killed
Two and Injured Two
Must Face Trial

DOES NOT TESTIFY

Declines To Tell Coroner's Jury His Version of
The Crash

A coroner's jury last night recommended that Bruno R. Nonini, Bristol, be held for the grand jury on the charge of involuntary manslaughter. Nonini was the driver of the car which early on the morning of May 26th, struck and killed a man and woman and injured another man and a woman on Route 713 (Burlington-Bristol bridge approach).

After a number of witnesses had been heard by Coroner J. Alfred Rigby and a jury consisting of Ralph Ratchliffe, foreman; George Bruton, Irvin Scheffey, Edward Dougherty, James H. Brooks, Bristol; Elmer VanSant, Cornwells Heights, Coroner Rigby asked Nonini if he desired to testify.

"He doesn't care to testify," replied Nonini's attorney, J. Leslie Kilcoyne, Esq.

Nonini will be held under bail
today by Justice of Peace Cooper, of Langhorne, for the next term of criminal court. Nonini has been out on bail awaiting the action of the coroner's jury.

The Nonini car fatally injured Claire Di Vincenzo, 19, 216 Cedar street, and Alphonso Walukas, 23, 534 Bath street, home address 719 Wood Court, South Park, Pa. The two injured in the same accident were Harriet Jones, 70, Knights Road, Torresdale, who suffered abrasions of the left leg and Edward Markuse, 19, 430 Radcliffe street, who sustained abrasions of the head, arm and legs.

The accident occurred at about 120 a. m., on May 26th and Nonini was driving a car without an operator's license, his having been suspended according to Officer Bolwka, Penna. State Police, on July 8, 1941,
for an accident in Philadelphia.
The license had never been restored.

Officer Bolwka was the first witness and he read a statement given him by Nonini after the accident in which the defendant said that the lights of an approaching car had blinded him and that he did not see the two couples walking in back of each other, until he was too close upon them to avoid striking them. The statement told how Nonini and his wife had met Private Jesse Bartle, Garden street, and Katherine Crudo, Cedar and Penn street, at the Moose Home in Bristol. They drove to the Moose Home in Burlington and after a while Nonini drove his wife back to Bristol and then returned to Burlington for Bartle and Miss Crudo.
It was while the three were enroute to Bristol from Burlington that the four pedestrians were struck by the Nonini car.

Private Bartle is now in France,
but following the accident had told Officer Bolwka, he said, that he was riding in the front seat on the right side. He said that he felt the brakes being applied and then heard a thud as the car struck the pedestrians. Bartle and Nonini got out of the car and Nonini aided in placing the dead and injured in the cars of others to be taken to hospitals, while Bartle took Miss Crudo to her home.

In reply to a question by the Coroner Officer Bolwka said that he did not charge Nonini with being intoxicated, but that he detected the odor of liquor on his breath.

BOMBS OF 1,000 TONS

When a mouthpiece on the German radio asserted recently that Allied leaders had agreed that the war in Europe must be forced to an end by October at the latest—before the Nazis have an opportunity to put new weapons into use—a press dispatch from London said the broadcast apparently was trumpeted to the German people to rally them behind the Reich's effort to gain time and a military stalemate.

It is, of course, obvious that the Allies now have the upper hand and need not take any desperate measures because of Nazi threats of new weapons. Yet, German broadcasts of new weapons to come sound quite formidable in the light of the possibilities of development of the robot bomb.

A writer in the New York Herald-Tribune presents an interesting but rather frightening picture of weapons of the future and terms the robot bomb the culmination of a tremendous development in the direction of self-propelled missiles. The rocket airplane is a corollary step, he says, and the self-propelled rocket cannon is another, but "above them all rides the eerie potentiality of the 10-ton (or the 100-ton, or the 1,000-ton) stratosphere rocket shell, capable of being fired 100 or 200 miles, or from Berlin to Chicago in some dark days ahead.

"The flying bomb is a vision of the future; not a pretty vision, but one that must be anticipated if the decent human beings left on earth are to survive the scourge of humanity which seems to have such an affinity with the German race. It is not possible to imagine any other European race first using a weapon as indiscriminate and inhuman as the flying bomb, or the V-2 rocket of 10 or more tons, when it, too, rides the stratosphere into civilized consciousness."

This, of course, is a line adopted by most commentators during a war. No other race than the current enemy would do such things. But it is conceivable that a new power will arise from this conflict, more formidable and ruthless than any world menace of the past or present. It has frequently happened after former wars.

The potential robot is to the airplane, even at this stage, the writer says, what the automobile is to the horse or the bicycle. The robot, he says, is cheap to build, has incredible possibilities of speed in stratosphere flight and untouched tactical and strategic avenues of new warfare. So far England has seen only the baby robot and few Britons would care to see an older brother.

The writer asks whether the potential robot or automaton shall be the weapon of the Germans and the Japanese in 1950, or whether "we shall seize this great new science and devote its use to civilized purposes. It seems that the answer is up to us, and the answer should not be long delayed."

"He appeared very nervous and excited," said the officer. He was not examined for intoxication. One of the bodies was thrown 69 feet while the other was tossed 81 feet, according to the physical evidence as related by the officer.

Other details concerning the width of the highway, the physical surroundings of the location, evidence of where the impact occurred and the position of the bodies when found were all related by Blowers.

Allan Barr, Wilson avenue, told of arriving at the scene of the accident and of having taken Markusic to the Wagner hospital, to which institution Walukas was also taken while the Misses Di Vincenzo and Jones were taken to the Harriman hospital.

Vannum Morris, who accompanied Barr corroborated Barr's story.

Kenneth Groves, 314 Wood street, now in the Merchant Marine, said that he and two other male companions were walking along the same highway and that when the Nonini car passed them they had to jump out of the way as it was zooming at a high rate of speed. He told of arriving at the scene of the accident and the position of the bodies when he saw them.

With Groves was John Cordisco and he also testified. The third member of the group was John Di Angelo but he was not called before the jury.

Edward Markusic, one of the injured, told the jury that the four left the Rohm & Haas Club House and were walking to Bristol. "We were all happy and laughing and talking. I was with Claire ahead and about four or five feet back of us was Walukas and Harriet Jones," Markusic said that he was walking on the shoulder of the road

Miss Crudo told of driving to Burlington with Nonini, his wife and Private Bartle and of the return trip home when the accident occurred. She told the jury that she was asleep on Bartle's shoulder all of the way across the bridge and that she did not see the accident. She heard a noise and waking up found herself showered with broken glass and then fainted.

Miss Crudo told the jury that so far as she knew Nonini did not drink anything other than beer on the night in question.

Jim Haight grinned at his father-in-law. "Such a small reception committee?"

he came back from his apartment in New York he'd packed his books and clothes and things and shipped them to Wrightsville, care of General De-livery, and they've been held in the baggage room ever since. Here he is! Jim, did you get everything?"

Jim waved from Ed Hotchkiss's cab, which was heaped with suitcases, nailed boxes, and a wardrobe trunk. Ed and Jim carried them into the house.

Ellery remarked how fit Jim looked, and Jim with a friendly handclasp thanked him for "being so decent about moving out." Nora wanted Mr. "Smith" to stay for lunch. But Ellery said he'd take advantage of that invitation when Nora and Jim weren't so busy getting settled; and he left.

The last thing "the famous author" saw was Jim and Nora in each other's arms.

Mr. Queen grinned. If the bride's house hid a calamity within its walls, it was hidden superlatively well.

Ellery attacked his novel with energy. Except for mealtimes, he remained in his quarters on the top floor of the house which Herm and Carter Bradford drew high order numbers; Mr. Queen observed to drop in at the Hollis Hotel early on the morning of the thirtieth for a New York newspaper, upon reading which he was seen by Mark Doodle's son Grover to shrug and toss the paper away.

Halloween was mad. People on the Hill answered mysterious doorbells all day. Menacing signs in colored chalk appeared on pavements. As evening came on, costumed gnomes began to flit about town, their faces painted and their arms flapping. And many of them went to bed with tingling bottoms.

Mr. Queen strolled about the neighborhood before dinner wishing he were young again so that he, too, might enjoy Halloween. On his way back to the Wright house, he noticed that the Haight place next door was lit up; and on impulse he went up the walk and rang his ex-doorbell.

But it was Pat, not Nora, who answered the door.

"Thought you'd run out on me," said Pat. "We never see you any more." Then she announced, "It's the famous author, Nora!"

FLEETWINGS NINE BATTLES RIVALS TO A 5 TO 5 DEADLOCK

Rising Sun A. C., of Phila., Deadlocks Score After Wingers Had Lead

HENRY STARS AT BAT

Phila. Player Made 22 Hits And Was Passed Once

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—Fleetwings and the Rising Sun A. C. battled to a 5-5 deadlock last evening on the latter's field. The Rising Sun team deadlocked the score after the Wingers had taken a 5-4 lead in the fourth inning.

The battling of Henry, of the home team, stood out. By getting three hits in his first three trips to the plate, Henry extended his hitting streak to 22 straight hits. In the sixth, Henry was purposely passed. It was this same Henry who sent the tying run across the plate with a single.

"Mike" DeRisi tossed them in for Fleetwings and with the exception of the second he led the Rising Sun boys in check. He allowed nine hits with eight of them going to Henry, Covello and Kuhn.

Fleetwings had seven hits off Kuhn and Hewitt. The latter retired Kuhn in the third. But several of the Arrows' players were robbed of hits by the sensational fielding of Covello, third-sacker for the Rising Sun team. Calderone hit three singles and was given a pass to lead the Fleetwings batters.

The Arrows had their best frame in the third when they tied the score after trailing 4-2. Holcomb was given a walk. Dougherty sacrificed him to second. Calderone was passed. Walker whiffed but Ludwig was hit with a pitched ball to load the bags. D'Ascendis beat out an infield hit to score Holcomb and when Bachman drew a pass, Calderone scored.

After Dougherty had been put on base by being hit with a pitched ball in the fourth, Calderone and Walker hit safely to score the runners and give Fleetwings the edge but the Philadelphia boys tied it up in their half of the inning when Kuhn singled and went to third on Ludwig's error. Henry scored the runner with a base hit.

ing plasma, is being used on all our fighting fronts. Flown, shipped, carried by natives, or dropped by parachute, blood plasma carries a AA-1 priority right up to the front lines. It is the foremost lifesaver of the war. Its use is largely responsible for the fact that 97 out of every 100 of our wounded men are being saved.

"The principal advantage of plasma over whole blood transfusions, upon which we had to rely during the first World War, is that plasma requires neither typing nor refrigeration and can be prepared in advance and used under the most difficult combat conditions. In many instances, as in Salpan, Guam, Italy and France, medical department men crawl forward carefully shielding precious bottles of plasma and give emergency transfusions to wounded men in the very front lines. Plasma is also administered when the man is moved back to a casualty clearing station, and again in hospitals in the rear. In thousands of cases, the prompt administration of plasma means the difference between life and death.

"In many instances, especially those in which the patient is suffering from traumatic shock unaccompanied by excessive bleeding, plasma transfusions are the only transfusions required. In others, red blood cells, which are removed in the processing of plasma, are needed also. These are primarily cases in which the patient has lost a large quantity of blood. In such cases, whole blood transfusions are used to supplement the use of plasma. Since whole blood is highly perishable compared with plasma (which keeps indefinitely) and requires rather cumbersome refrigeration, whole blood transfusions for the most part are necessarily limited to hospitals in rear areas.

"Although this practice will be continued as needed, extensive experiments with the preservation and transportation of whole blood have now established the feasibility of shipping whole blood from this country to the European theater—and possibly, in the near future, to other theaters—by air. It is also possible that red blood cells, which formerly were discarded in the processing of plasma, may be resuspended in saline solution, flown to the combat zones, and used for the same purpose. Obviously, the availability of such supplies will greatly facilitate the treatment of the wounded.

"Plans for the inauguration of such a whole blood program now have been completed. In order to begin shipments without delay, it is requested that the American Red Cross through its Blood Donor Service arrange immediately to supply Type "O" whole blood for daily shipment by air to Europe.

"How much whole blood will be required will depend upon the course of the war. At present, 1,000 pints a day are requested. This, of course, is in addition to the 100,000 pints a week required for blood plasma.

"To facilitate air transport and to simplify technical operations, it is requested that for the time being the procurement of typed whole blood be limited to the Red Cross Blood Donor Centers in Washington and New York. In event additional amounts are required or the program is expanded to include other theaters, additional request will be made. Although it is improbable that it will be feasible or necessary to extend the typed blood project beyond a few Centers, this new request obviously represents a substantial increase in the total amount of blood required each week.

"The power to tax is the power to destroy."

Taxation may destroy the individual, or the nation, or both. Moreover, its effects are not confined to one generation but may extend far into the future.

Under any contemporary plan of financial arrangement, taxes are paid by everyone. None escapes. At points this even verges on absurdity. A government pays an employee, a war veteran, or a man on relief, a certain sum out of public taxes—and then promptly recaptures a considerable share of the payment in direct or indirect taxes.

Few stop to think that, in theory at least, the same result could be obtained with much less waste motion and greatly lessened total expense simply by writing a smaller check in the first place.

This of course is not necessarily feasible, for many reasons; the principal one being that so large a portion of our taxes are the "invisible" kind. A few years ago it was a popular piece of mental gymnastics to take any familiar article of commerce—a pack of cigarets, or an automobile—and show how huge a proportion of its consumer cost was nothing but taxes.

There are articles in the so-called luxury class—but so widely consumed that the term is misleading—in which two-thirds or three-fourths of the final price represents tax levies.

It is virtually impossible to think of a purchase of even so small amount as a dime in which there is not a more or less obvious tax.

pus is principally of oaks of various kinds and many nut trees, while through the grounds have been planted magnolias, crab apples, flowering cherries, of which there is a fine grouping, redbuds, English hawthorne and the unusual weeping Norway spruce.
